

The new branch information stand was installed in the reception area at 'The Butterfly Effect' in the Roundtrees Garden Centre in Congressbury during the early part of May.

The stand, designed and built by branch member Keith Gould, shows some of the different habitats that butterflies live in within our area in addition to how they form an important part of food chains. There is also some information about the work that branch members undertake and lists of our Field Trips and Moth trapping events.

The butterfly house is a great place to take children (and adults) to learn about butterflies and to see some of the exotic species from elsewhere in the world, which fly freely in the warm and humid environment of the butterfly house.

Our thanks to John Vanderplank of The Butterfly Effect for allowing us to place the stand there and to Keith for his outstanding design and hard work in building the stand.

The Butterfly Effect website can be found at <http://www.butterfliesandmore.co.uk>

Centre View

Left-hand side view